STATING/DESCRIBING PURPOSE OR INTENTION BY USING CONJUNCTION

TO, IN ORDER TO, SO THAT

WHAT IS CONJUNCTION?

Conjunctions connect words, phrases, clauses, and sentences together.
The conjunctions to, in order to, so that are used to describe purposes. however they can be used in different ways.

CLAUSE AND PHRASE

Before we continue to the example, make sure that you understand what is CLAUSE AND PHRASE.

- Clause is a group the words that includes at least a subject and a verb.
- Phrase is a group of words that does not include a subject and a verb. LETS’ STUDY THE USING OF CONJUNCTION “TO”
- I want to go to England to improve my English
- He changed his job to make more money “ To + infinitive” the reason a purpose of an action THE USING OF CONJUNCTION “ in order to”
- We took a taxi in order to arrive on time
- Exercise regularly in order not to get sick

From these examples we can see that In order to, in order not to, followed by infinitive. THE USING OF CONJUNCTION “ so that”

- We took a taxi so that we could arrive on time
- I will cook so that you can relax

From these examples we can see that conjunction “so that” followed by subject and verb. EXAMPLE:

- I am using my computer to send an email to my friend
- He is learning Mandarin so that he can study in China
- Dad goes jogging every morning in order to keep fit

Clause	Conjunction	Phrase
I want to go to Jakarta	to	improve my English
She changed her job	to	make more money
We took a taxi	in order to	arrive on time
Exercise regularly	in order not to	get sick
Clause	Conjunction	Clause
We took a taxi	so that	we could arrive on time
I will cook	so that	you can relax

From the table above we can conclude :

- Conjunction to, and in order to followed by Phrase
- Conjunction so that followed by clause
